A., under plans of the Civic League of Connellsville which is in charge of the program. It will be the first time for a new mayor or council to take the oath outside the walls of the municipal building.

The oath will probably be administered by J. Q. Van Swearingen, president judge of Fayette county. Invitations to attend the inaugural ceremonies have been accepted by Judge Van Swearingen, and also by Judge E. H. Roper and Judge J. C. Work, but it has not been definitely decided who will swear the new executives into office.

Congressman Samuel A. Kendall has accepted an invitation to be here and an invitation has been sent to United States Senator William E. Crow. He has not yet accepted because of the condition of his health. Court Crier Charles M. Fee will open the ceremonies.

Judges Van Swearingen and Roper and Work will occupy seats on a platform at one end of the hall. Seated in front of them will be members of the present city council. The final work of the year will be finished up and the body will adjourn sine die shortly after 10 o'clock. At the table there will be a vacant chair in memory of Mayor John Duggan who died Christmas morning.

A general invitation is extended to the public. The hall will be appropriately decorated for the occasion. There will be no program.

Following the ceremonies the mayor, members of council and other honor guests will be entertained by the executive committee of the Civic League. A 12 o'clock dinner will be served.

The inspectors also reported 982 violations of the child labor act during the year and prosecutions were started in 276. Violations of the child labor act were the most numerous of those turned up by the department's inspectors.

COUNTY SEALER W. J. CALLAGHAN DIES SUDDENLY

Is Stricken With Paralysis at His Home in Uniontown Was Formerly in Employ of Frick Company.

Following a stroke of paralysis, William J. Callaghan, 67 years old, sealer of weights and measures in Fayette county, died Thursday afternoon at his home in Uniontown. Mr. Callaghan had been prominent in the political and business life of Fayette county for a number of years. Previous to being appointed to the head of the office of sealer of weights and measures, when the office was first organized in 1911, Mr. Callaghan had been in charge of the office of the U. S. Frick Coke company and W. J. Rainey, Inc. At one time he also held a position in the post-office department at Harrisburg. He was also an inventor of note, having invented a safety lamp which is in general use throughout this district at the present time.

Mr. Callaghan was born at Hamilton, Scotland, December 28, 1854, a son of Laughlin and Mary Money Callaghan. He came to America at the age of 16 years and had been a resident of Fayette county for the past 40 years. He was a member of St. John's Catholic church, the Knights of Columbus and the Elks of Uniontown.

Mr. Callaghan married twice. His first wife, Margaret Hickey Callaghan, died September 22, 1909. To this union were born the following children who survive, Mrs. Margaret Doyle and Mrs. L. G. Howard, Uniontown; Patrick J. Callaghan, state mine inspector for the Pittsburgh district, Pittsburgh; L. B. Callaghan, latrobe; Danmet and Ott Callaghan, Nemausquin, and Leo Callaghan, Adolinda.

In August, 1908, Mr. Callaghan married Mrs. Mary Goodwin, who, with the following grandsons, also survive, John Goodwin, West Virginia; Edward Goodwin, High House, and Joseph Goodwin, Detroit, Mich.

The deceased also survived by a grandson, William O'Toole of Gary, W. Va., recently named United States minister to Paraguay.

Veiled Threat To Destroy Piano Comes to Nottor

A vandal ruined a good piano in the Maccabee dance hall Tuesday night when entrance was forced through a rear window and a bucket of water poured over the keys. The act was discovered until Wednesday evening when the orchestra engaged to play for a dance there that night had arrived. The instrument had been valued at $150.

P. E. Nottor, who holds dances in the Maccabee hall every Wednesday evening, received a letter early this week, stating that he was "employing a foreign orchestra" and that it "did not belong to the union." Both of these statements have proven to be untrue, he said, as the members of the orchestra belong to the local union and the only way that "foreign" can be attached to them is, that the orchestra comes from Scotland.

Demented Woman Held.
Elizabeth Thomas, of Dry Hill, apparently demented, is being held at city hall until it has been determined how to handle her case. She was found near the Pennsylvania railroad station about 5 o'clock this morning.

Mason Will Carry Demand For Whisky Theft Probe Before Incoming Council

City Clerk Harry G. Mason will take his request for an investigation into the disappearance of the three gallons of moonshine whisky from the city hall safe to the incoming council, he seemed "furious" that "police can arrest persons for the theft of moonshine elsewhere" but that in this instance there seemed to be lack of a desire to look into the matter.

The clerk has been instructed by some members of council to go as far as he likes, assuring him he will have their backing. He said today that Chief Thomas McDonald scouted the idea of clearing anything up by a investigation among the police. "They would only dig out of it," was the chief's comment, and Mason concurs with him, but nevertheless the clerk wants to know why it is that thieves elsewhere are caught and robbers can go unmolested in the police station.

Asked if he were going to take the matter up before the new council named by Mr. Mason replied "I certainly will." He said he believed the new administration would change a few things in the police system.

There has been speculation as to the ultimate deportation of Zagloul since receipt of the first dispatches telling of his removal to Suez by the British authorities. The Nationalists were expelled from Cairo after refusing to discontinue political activities and their removal was followed by disorders in Cairo and other cities in which a number of lives were lost.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR CONTINUOUS FLIGHT YANKEE'S

Edward Stinson, Flying All-
Metal Machine, Aloft
Over 26 Hours.

MACHINE GIVES TROUBLE

Is Finally Forced to Descend at Minneapolis Because of Faulty Oil Tank;
Gasoline Enough on Hand to Last to Sundown; Other American Records.

By Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, N. Y., Dec. 30.—The last monoplane, piloted by Edward Stinson, which this morning broke the world's continuous flying record of 24 hours 19 minutes and 7 seconds, descended shortly after 11:15. It was in the air 26 hours, 19 minutes and 23 seconds.

Stinson and his mechanic, Lloyd Bertau, were a bit of a looking pair when they stepped from their machine. Their faces were smeared with oil and their eyes, bloodshot. Neither had a wink of sleep since they hopped off and Stinson said the only nourishment had been a little coffee. Newspaper men found difficulty in interviewing Bertau who had been dazed by the roar of the motor. Both have been flying in the air and they were boys. They took no particular precaution to protect themselves against the wintry weather. The pilot said the maximum altitude was 4,750 feet. The machine carried 350 gallons of gasoline when he took the air and had 70 left when he landed.

Stinson and Bertau commenced their flight at Roosevelt field at 8:58 yesterday. The machine is equipped with one 165 horsepower motor. Every ounce of unnecessary weight was stripped before the flight. About 370 gallons of gasoline and 28 gallons of oil were carried.

Stinson, stationed at Kelly field, Tex., during the war as a civilian instructor because of delicate health, probably trained more American fliers than any one man.

Unexcelled as a stunt flyer he is proud of never having fallen during 16 years in the air. He is credited with not even having broken a part of a plane. He lands in his seat with a little concern as the average pilot going for a motor ride. The love of flying runs in the family for two sisters are also expert pilots.

Stinson was forced to descend because of a faulty oil connection with which he and Bertau had battled since 2 o'clock this morning. They still had gas enough to have flown until sundown. Stinson did not let his seat in the open cockpit since 4 P. M. yesterday and his mechanic found little time to seek shelter. Three fingers of Stinson's right hand and one on the left were frozen. Bertau's hands were numb.

John W. Larson, inventor of the plane, said the machine might stay up until night as there was enough gasoline on board. Observers pointed out that whereas previous efforts to establish an endurance record had been made in the most favorable season, this flight was made with the mercury near zero, to the accompaniment of strong winds and snow flurries. The Aeronautical Club of Commerce hailed the flight as a fitting climax to the achievements of 62 American aviators in 1920 when four world records were made by Yankee birdmen.

The others were:
August 16—A Leaning monoplane flying boat, rising to 19,500 feet with four passengers, established an official and passenger record for a ship of its class.

September 28—Lieutenant J. A. McCready of the Army air service drove an airplane to a height of 37,800 feet at Dayton, O.

November 3—Bert Acosta, in a navy racer, with a speed of 176.7 miles an hour for a 150-mile course, broke the record for a closed course at Omaha.

The Weather

SENATOR CROW WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR FULL 6-YEAR TERM

Denies Campaign Rumor Given
Circulation by Democratic Agencies.

"AM FEELING FIRST RATE"

He Says When Speaking of Present
Condition of His Health; Intends to Be at His Desk in the Senate When Congress Reconvenes on Tuesday.

The story emanating from and being disseminated by Democratic agencies that United States Senator W. E. Crow will not be a candidate for nomination for the full term, on account of the condition of his health, is denied and by no better authority than Senator Crow himself.

He came home for the Christmas holidays last Thursday and until Wednesday evening has been at his residence, Gallatin avenue, Uniontown. He had arranged to stay at home until Saturday or Sunday then return to Washington for the reconvening of Congress on Tuesday. He was unexpectedly called away on Wednesday evening but before leaving he made the following statement for publication in refutation of the campaign rumor the Democratic newspapers have so industriously circulated:

"I have never had but one idea, and that is to be a candidate for the full term. There has been no other thought than that whatever. No other suggestion has ever been made to me.

"As everybody knows, I have not been quite up to par, but I have been spending most of my time getting ready for my Senate duties. I intend to be present at the opening session when the Senate reconvenes after the holidays.

"I am feeling first rate now, and am confident to the hilt. I go out every day for an hour, gradually getting back to my old-time form. You can say it just as strong as you like, I am a candidate for the full term."

Philadelphia physicians who have been attending Senator Crow deny that there is anything more troubling him than a nervous breakdown from which he is showing decided signs of recovery.

A proposal from the Postal Telegraph company that the annual pole tax be reduced from 60 cents to 10 cents was rejected and the tax was fixed at 25 cents. This will apply to other companies.

Tax exoneration, of $20.25 were allowed.

British Ready to Propose Ratio for Airplane Carriers

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—When the subject of limitation of naval airplane carriers is reached in the conference probably today or tomorrow, it is stated the British will propose the application of a definite ratio as in the case of capital ships.

The British are said to be ready to propose an allowance of 5-6-3-2-2, which means that Great Britain and America each have a ratio of five, Japan a ratio of three and France and Italy each two. The British proposal also contemplates the maximum size of these ships at 25,000 tons. If British tons are meant by this the ships will correspond practically in size to 27,000 tons American measurement.

Massage Parlors for Men With Girl Attendants Are Under Fire in Windy City

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Grand jury indictments of three women owners of massage parlors, based on evidence of "that Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, terms 'gross and increasing and even immoral' were announced today as the beginning of a determined campaign to rid Chicago of scores of such establishments. Mr. Crowe announced that the investigation revealed that the thrifflers and most pretentious of these parlors, with female attendants, are said by investigators to be in the loop district.

"There are hundreds of these places in the city. Some of them are legitimate and respectable, principally those catering exclusively to women. I can see nothing respectable about a place where girls bathe and massage men," said the state's attorney.

At some of the places it was found that the "lured business men" made engagements with the girl attendants for after business hours, although no specific incidents of vice were uncovered in any of the places indicated.

Urge Retention of Potassium Cyanide On the Free List

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Retention of potassium cyanide on the free list was urged before the Senate Finance committee today by Senator Sterling, Republican of South Dakota. He explained it was used principally in extracting gold from ore.

Former Governor Charles J. McCarthy of Hawaii presented a protest from similar producers of Honolulu against a tariff on potash. Their cablegram said it would add to food costs and was unnecessary as the demand exceeded the supply.

"You want protection on sugar do you not, governor," asked Senator Snook.

"Yes, we want a tariff," the governor answered.

"Well, I think it is a small thing for the sugar producers of Hawaii to oppose duty on potash and ask for duty on sugar," the senator replied.

"Follies" Rehearsal Tonight; Legion Show Coming Along Finely

There will be a full rehearsal of the "Legion Follies" tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Elks home. Announcement was made today that all costumes for the French village scene have been secured.

Everything is coming along finely for the show. The reason no date has been set, Director John R. Brown said, is that it is the desire to get the show at such a stage of perfection that there will be no rough places to mar its presentation. "We want to put it over right," Mr. Brown said.

The show will probably be given the first or second week in February.

IF FRANCE WANTS DEBTS CANCELLED SHE MUST PLAY

Her Refusal on Submarines
Has Hurt Her Position
In Conference.

RULED BY HOME POLITICS

Instead of a Desire to Create the Right Impression; Attitude Wholly
Endangers Success of the Whole
Conference Program, Is Belief.

By Mark Sullivan.

National Political Correspondent of The Courier and the New York Post.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—If you ask whether anything can be found to say in extenuation of what the French delegates have done to the conference, the answer, after a large number of conversation with persons entirely open-minded and without feeling about it, is, for the most part, very little. If you ask whether the episode is likely to have discouraging consequences, both immediate and remote, the answer is, unhappily, yes.

It just happened that the climax of the steady French course of preventing success for the conference coincided with the most important utterance made in America in the direction of our cancelling the debts due us from France and other European countries. The position of Justice John H. Clarke, both as a member of the Supreme Court and otherwise, is such as to carry much weight. But if you were today to call the roll of Congress and the Senate together with other public men in a position to influence the event, you would find hardly a man willing to follow Justice Clarke's lead.

France wants several things from America. Among them, she wants the cancellation of the debts she owes us, and she wants the assurance that we will come to her help if she is ever again attacked by Germany. There was and is just one way for France to get these things, and that way is so plain as to make the right sort of impression on American people, and so to conduct her relations with us that, whenever the issue arises, the American people shall have the feeling about her that would move us to come to her help.

To visualize the effect of what has just happened, there is no better way than the crude but effective answer made by many American public men to the question of relieving France from paying the money she owes us. "Are we," it is replied, "going to let France have our money to buy more huge naval equipment?" In the same way the other question is answered. "Are we going to come to the help of France in any future war when she willfully endangers success at the very beginning of the elaborate program President Harding has had in mind, going much beyond the present conference, for agreements and cooperation aimed to make future war impossible?"

But the discouraging effect of the actions of the French delegates goes even further than this. What the American public may have sensed vaguely is realized even more concretely and definitely by persons close to the conference. That is, that much that has been done here by the particular French individuals is not necessarily the act of the French people, but is dictated to a considerable extent by personal political considerations by the French delegates.

The net effect of all this is a discouraged feeling on the part of the Americans that it is hopeless for us to become involved in this sort of thing. We can't possibly conduct our affairs with one eye on the politics of Paris. In short, the result of this French development must be accepted as having the effect of making us less willing to take part in international conferences or in international affairs altogether.

Those who favor isolation for America are greatly strengthened in their position and for those who realize that France exists and we must live in the same world with her, the possibility of a satisfactory relation to the world is made more difficult. Nevertheless, the net result of the situation, as it exists today, is not discouraging. The American, British, Japanese and Italian delegates to this conference are wise and able men. As to the Americans especially, they did not go into this matter expecting it would be an easy walk to success.

They took into account possibilities of trouble even more serious than what has happened. These worse potential difficulties are already past. As to the present and future of the conference, there are no resources not yet used. It can be expected with confidence that today is the worst the conference will be likely to see. Even as to France there are considerable not of compulsion but of self-interest that sooner or later can be depended on to make her see a better light. (Copyright, 1921, by N. Y. Evening Post, Inc.)

WALL PAPER AND PAINT GIVEN AWAY

On one certain day in January we will refund the price paid for every article purchased from us on that day. No strings, no advances in prices. No reservations made except on LINSEED OIL, WHITE LEAD AND TURPENTINE.

No matter how much you buy. You can buy enough paper to paper your entire house, or paint enough to paint it.

This is the plan that we have arranged with the Colonial National Bank. They take a January calendar and mark one date, Sunday's excluded, with a cross as illustrated. It may be the first day of the month that is marked (X), or it may be the last, or anywhere between, so it will pay to start early and scatter your purchases over the entire month.

This January calendar is placed in an envelope and will be opened by an officer of the bank in the presence of responsible witnesses, and the date marked will be announced in this paper.

No one but the bank officer will know the date. This means to everyone who bought goods from us on that date, and paid for them in cash, we will refund every dollar at purchase price. It makes no difference how many people, where they are from or how much your purchases, it all goes.

ARE YOU LUCKY?

Buy it in January and Get it Free

RULES—You must keep your purchase slips and present same to us on or before February 10th, 1922, in order to get your money. (Purchase slips must be presented.)

Special to The Courier.

CONNELLSVILLE, Dec. 30.—Operations have been resumed at the Old Meadow plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company after a suspension for repairs to an engine. A new hot mill has been added, making eight now running. The new mill, No. 1, had been torn out several years ago to make room for a cold roll. The new mill gives employment to 10 additional men on a shift or 30 men for the 24-hour period. Several changes in crews were made yesterday, a number of employees being promoted. The Scottsdales sheet plant has been running in full with the exception of Monday, when operations were suspended for Christmas.

Cause of Mishap Unknown.

The body of J. Edgar Siler, 40 years old, who was burned to death at the pipe mill yesterday morning, was taken this morning from the Ferguson undertaking rooms to the Siler home on Second avenue. The body is so badly burned that it cannot be viewed. The cause of his death is a mystery. The man was found by his brother-in-law, Alex Otto, rolling around in an effort to extinguish the fire. Whether he had spilled a can of turpentine that he had taken to the vault under the scales or whether gas had been exploded from the open torch he carried is not known.

Barry Plans to Match Ray and Donnelly Here During Week of Jan. 16

Duke Will Meet Ray's Pilot in Pittsburgh Next Monday.

IN PROSPECT FOR YEAR

Johnny Ray, the premier lightweight boxer of Western Pennsylvania, and Johnny Donnelly, the first Uniontown youth, who is rapidly making a name for himself, may soon be seen in action in this city. James Mason, the pilot of the star Pittsburgher, called Matchmaker Duke Barry on the telephone late last night and informed Barry that after looking over the field hereabouts he figured that this city was the logical place to stage this long talked about bout.

"Mason demanded an unheard of price for Ray's services in this section," said Barry, "but I am fully confident that I can persuade him to talk in reasonable figures. Monday I will meet both Ray and Mason in Pittsburgh and discuss the terms for a bout to take place here during the week of January 16."

This bout has been pending for over a year. Uniontown has been trying to bring the two together for that period. Other cities including Pittsburgh has also been after the bout but Barry has had the inside track, judging by Mason's conversation with the local promoter.

There is said to be no question that Donnelly will allow Ray to grab off the larger part of the gate, so long as Donnelly gets an opportunity to mingle with the star of Mason's stable. The Uniontown Johnny has been going along at a rapid clip recently in Philadelphia he defeated Whitey Fitzgerald, one of the best lightweights of the Quaker City, on Christmas afternoon.

COKERS MEET GERMAN TWP. HERE TONIGHT

Connellsville high school basketball will take the floor tonight for the first game since before the Christmas holidays in the public schools. The quint will play German township. It will be the second contest of the year between the schools, the Cokers having journeyed to McConnelsville earlier in the season.

Tomorrow night the locals will play a stiffer opponent in the St. Vincent college quint. The collegians have met with varying success during their stay in this region over Christmas, both winning and losing games. The team is a strong one for high school to tackle at this season but an interesting game is certain.

Caseys to Play Fiji Panthers On January 5th

The Casey club has scheduled another hard opponent. The Fiji Panthers, a team composed of black football men from the University of Pittsburgh will be here on January 5. The game will be played in the parochial school hall.

M. E. TEAM IS GIVEN VICTORY OVER CLERKS

Talk about exciting basketball games. The contest between the M. E. and the M. J. at the "Y" last evening was so thrilling that the scorekeeper even got mixed up a his records and when the game was over the score book showed a score of 35 to 24 in favor of the clerks.

There was a mark on the record of R. Engleka which looked as though the scorekeeper had marked down a field goal but had sort of blundered it in as though he was recording the goal and looking at the game at the same time. The official score was given out as 36 to 35 in the M. E.'s favor. The matter will be put up to the league officials and their decision will be final.

The Bakers had an easy time with the Baptists defeating them by a score of 31-21. The Baptist team lost the presence of its captain, Welch.

Not much has been heard from the American Legion team so far this year. At various times, however, some whisperings that the ex-soldiers are practicing regularly. Perhaps the team will have something to show when it steps on the floor.

George (Cutshaw), who played second base for the Pittsburgh Pirates last year, has been sold to the Detroit Tigers. The deal was a purely cash one but no announcement of the price paid has been made. Frank Nix, president of the Detroit club, made the deal public.

Therefore, at the very top of the list of government needs is placed the examination and licensing of pilots."

During the war more than 17,000 young men were trained to fly. Low accidents of those given an air ticket in inadequate training, flying or to the total lack of landing facilities. During the war the army and the navy acquired many thousands most of which have since been abandoned. The fragmentary remainder has been slightly added to by the air mail mail that flies and pilot in the air.

SIX FACTORS IN FLYING SAFELY

More Air Ports, Competency and Weather Forecasts Needed.

1,200 COMMERCIAL AIRCRAFT

In Six Months These Machines Covered a Distance of 3,254,000 Miles—40 Accidents and 14 Deaths in That Period—Emergency Landing Fields Are Needed—Also Specialized Weather Forecasts Adapted to Needs of Flyers.

There are engaged in commercial flying in the United States about 1,200 aircraft, according to a report prepared for the Department of Commerce by the Manufacturers Aircraft Association. This report is based on the most trustworthy information obtainable, and a conservative estimate places the number flown by the 1,200 aircraft in the present year at 3,254,000 miles and in that period there were 40 serious accidents in civil flying, the computation not including accidents to government-owned machines, resulting in the death of fourteen persons and more or less serious injury to fifty-two others. In light of the accidents there were no accidents to the fourteen deaths being back to ten accidents and the fifty-two injuries in forty accidents.

The report as made public by the Information Group of the United States Army Air Service, contains the following qualifications for safe flying, as six in number. They are:

1. A machine sound and structurally sound.
2. An engine of sufficient power.
3. A competent, conservative pilot and navigator.
4. Air ports with emergency landing fields sufficiently close together to insure gliding to safety.
5. Nation-wide weather forecasts, standardized and adapted to the needs of flyers.
6. Nations air-route list.

Licensing of Pilots

"Each of the forty 'Ideals' says the report was caused by differing in one or more of the above items. Seventeen were attributed to the pilot perhaps through carelessness, neglect, incompetence, perhaps lack of judgment combined with other factors. There is no doubt that a good pilot can guide a poor machine to safety with greater chance of success than a poor pilot can operate a first class machine. Therefore, at the very top of the list of government needs is placed the examination and licensing of pilots."

During the war more than 17,000 young men were trained to fly. Low accidents of those given an air ticket in inadequate training, flying or to the total lack of landing facilities. During the war the army and the navy acquired many thousands most of which have since been abandoned. The fragmentary remainder has been slightly added to by the air mail mail that flies and pilot in the air.

United States is today woefully lacking in air ports for even the 1,200 aircraft in operation.

While only two accidents are attributed to the lack of weather reports and two to the lack of clearly defined routes or limitations in traveling between air ports, it is certain that aerial transport cannot develop until these factors are met.

"That in importance with learning the qualifications of pilot and navigator is the lack of aircraft and engines. Out of the forty accidents eleven may be attributed to faults which proper inspection would have revealed—three concerning the plane, six the engine and two an accessory. In many instances it is found that the engine is blamed when really it is an accessory that is at fault."

Eight Accidents During Stinting

"Eight of the forty accidents occurred during stinting. In these eight accidents six persons were killed and twenty six injured—exactly 50 percent of the total. In other words, stunt flying in unrestricted areas was responsible for as many casualties as all other elements combined. While stunt flying is necessary to testing and essential to war use—and it is believed advisable that all pilots know how to stunt so that in case of an emergency they will be able to act quickly, with understanding and without fear—the habit of stunt flying is dangerous fatal in many instances and always harmful to civil flying. A governmental system of control limiting stunt flying to certain areas, will not be an unfortunate menace to a rambling."

Two accidents were reported through carelessness on the field. In one a pilot in a stunt which ended in a crash, the pilot's machine as he was taking off deliberately, worked his craft. It is observed that at every flying demonstration, even at locally publicized fields, the spectators ignore warnings and must be forced to keep back. Only federal rules, rigidly enforced, will meet this situation.

Finally, five accidents are attributed to unknown causes. The hope of preventing accidents depends on learning—correcting—the cause of each. It is evident government authority is required to obtain information in such cases."

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 30.—At a bridge luncheon given yesterday at the College avenue home of Misses Ola and Rachel Stoner, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Ola Stoner, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Stoner, to Morris N. Pigman of this place. The engagement will terminate in an early summer wedding. Covers were laid for 25 at the luncheon. Out of town guests were Mrs. J. H. RUSSIAN FAMINE AREA IS WIDELY EXTENDED

Intense Suffering Seen on 2,000-Mile Trip Through Steppes and Plains.

The numerical and geographical extent of the great famine cannot be given. There is today and has been as much food available in Samara, for those who have money, as in Baku, in the Caspian sea, 2,000 miles distant. The Russian refugees from Bolshevism in Constantinople are suffering from hunger and lack of clothes almost as much as those Russians in Feltava, and they, in their turn, as much as those in Orenburg.

An Associated Press correspondent completed a journey from Tiflis, Baku, Astrakhan and Samara, and everywhere found intense misery, the most terrible of which was seen in the dreary steppe regions between Tiflis (Georgia) and Baku (port of Azerbaijan, on the Caspian sea).

There, revolution after revolution for five years has left a trail of destruction and ruined houses and wrecked railway stations which cannot be reached in Russia. Added to the lack of food is the constant battle with malaria, cholera and typhus.

Legging is rather the exception than the rule everywhere in the famine regions.

In the worst areas there is far more hunger swelling than was seen in Vienna in the winter of 1918. This is the last stage of starvation, and when it comes neither food nor medicine will help.

While there is perfect order in all Russia, on every hand the individual struggle for life, for daily food, is bitter and hard. No one thinks of any other thing. Robbery is limited, as robbery is small trading is the rule.

A person invited to a meal will eat twice what good manners would permit. He is laying in a stock of food, building up his body, he figures, for the winter cold. Those with money are hoarding food. In some places peasants refuse to sell bread at any price. They are afraid of the winter famine.

MOST POPULOUS URBAN CENTERS

New York, Chicago and Philadelphia in Lead.

CITY LIMIT CAUSE OF MIX-UP

Boston District is Fourth, While Boston City is Seventh; Detroit Political Division Ranks Fourth, but Metropolitan District Takes Sixth Position—Pittsburgh Also Suffers in Rank in Comparison of Population of Cities.

What are the five most populous "urban communities" in the United States?

The question sounds stilted, a bulletin from the National Geographic society admits, but the term refers, it is explained, to something entirely different from "the five largest cities." For some purposes it is more useful to know where the greatest numbers of city dwellers are gathered together than to know how many live inside arbitrary political divisions. Continuing the bulletin says:

"If the term 'cities' is used loosely, the United States is in the strange position of having two that rank fourth and two that are fifth in size, although these communities are of different magnitude. The mix-up is due to that artificial thing, the city limit. People in establishing their homes have shown a fine disregard for these lines—except as prompted by considerations of taxation—and have built on either side and even astride them. There are many places where city boundary lines run directly through blocks or along busy streets, leaving outside regions as populous or more populous than those included. Yet when 'the population of the city' is being ascertained, only the houses inside the imaginary line are counted."

"To clear up the difficulty and bring out the really important fact—that the greatest concentrations of city-dwelling populations are to be found in the United States census has gathered statistics not only for city political divisions but also for metropolitan districts. These latter include the entire urban communities made up of the big cities inside their political lines and also the city districts drawn closely around them, though outside the arbitrary boundaries. The figures obtained for these population units strikingly alter the rank of the cities."

Boston and Detroit. "The first three places are held by New York, Chicago and Philadelphia under both systems of enumeration. But while Boston, the political division, ranks seventh and Detroit fourth, the Boston metropolitan district jumps to fourth place and the Detroit metropolitan district takes the sixth position. The population figures show that within a rough circle drawn from the center of Boston with a radius of between ten and fifteen miles, there are in thickly-settled communities 1,772,254 inhabitants. "In a similar circle" drawn around Detroit in United States territory, there are 1,685,138 inhabitants. If the entire population of Wayne county in which Detroit is situated were counted in the Detroit district, and if the populations of the four counties grouped around Wayne county were added, the population would still be less than 1,400,000 though the average radius would then be increased to nearly 80 miles. The increase of the radius around Boston to 25 to 30 miles would bring into the district between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 inhabitants, for the eastern end of Massachusetts is one of the most thickly-populated regions in the United States.

Pittsburgh District Fifth. "Like Boston, Pittsburgh suffers in a comparison of the population of cities by the fact that the official city boundaries include a relatively small area, while immediately outside are numerous populous regions. When the figures for the Pittsburgh metropolitan district are used instead of the figures for the political division Pittsburgh rises from ninth to fifth place among the urban communities of the United States. Its metropolitan district has a population of 1,207,501, but within the imaginary lines of the city boundaries are less than half that number of inhabitants.

"The magnitude of the omissions of urban territory and populations from some of the cities in thickly settled portions of the country are brought out by canvasses of the suburbs cities and towns, left to be separately organized, which cluster first outside the city limits. Within ten to fifteen miles of Boston are three cities with populations between 10,000 and 110,000, six cities of between 40,000 and 90,000, 12 cities and towns of between 15,000 and 40,000, eight of between 10,000 and 15,000 and a large number of communities under 10,000 population. Pittsburgh's metropolitan district contains in addition to Pittsburgh itself 11 communities with populations ranging from 10,000 to 50,000, and 31 with populations between 5,000 and 10,000. Within the Detroit metropolitan district not included in the Detroit city limits are three towns and villages with populations between 10,000 and 50,000 and three numbering between 5,000 and 10,000 inhabitants."

OLD BRITISH ROYAL JEWEL

Stone Once Set in Ring of Edward the Confessor Said to Have Power of Driving Scales.

Only a few of the early British royal jewels survive in two present royalists. The oldest of these is the sapphire of Edward the Confessor, which was originally set in his coronation ring.

It was buried with him in his shrine in Westminster abbey, but in 1591 the shrine was broken open and this and other jewels recovered.

The sapphire is in the crown on the top of the king's state crown. Legend has it that St. John once appeared before the Confessor as a pilgrim and that the monarch gave him the ring which was returned later. The stone is reputed to have the power of curing scurvy and rheumatism, but has not been so used recently.

The Black Prince's ruby, as big as a hen's egg, came into British possession in 1367 having been taken by Don Pedro of Castile from the Moorish king of Granada, whom he slew in battle. The Black Prince wore it. Henry V displayed it in his helmet at Agincourt. Richard III. Lyncolnshire wore it at Bosworth field. Today this magnificent gem occupies the place of honor in the front of King George's crown.

Some wonder for fear it is the regalia are said to date from Elizabeth's time, though such age for a pearl is doubtful.—London Answers.

Turtle Liked the Music

The teacher of a school at Manchester, N. H., encouraged his pupils to bring small zoological specimens to school in order to become fully acquainted with them. The result of this collection included several turtles of various species. They were all kept in one enclosure. One for her says:

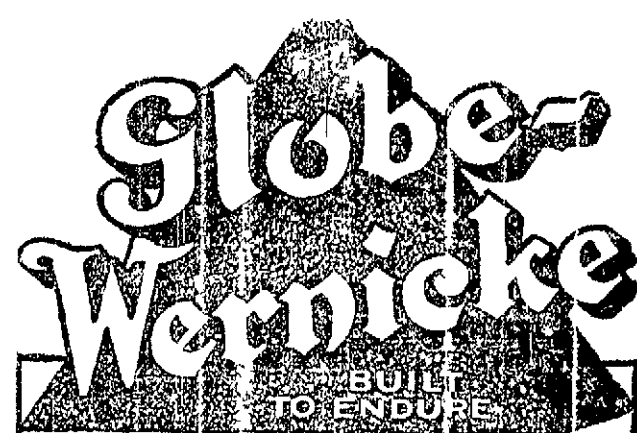

"It was while we had all the specimens together that I learned that they were attracted to music by music. They appeared to be listening, when the music began to play. The next music period I had me in the room watching them. Before the lesson began the turtles were moving slowly about, but the moment the music commenced every head was up in a listening attitude and I failed to see a movement of a head until the music began to play. I could not tell. It is reasonable, however, to believe that they were pleased for had they been in the turtle world they would have appeared content."

Precision and Exactness Taboo in Dressmaking.

Passing of Mathematical Ideas Has Made Place for Display of Great Art in Dress.

Precision and exactness have ceased to find a place in dressmaking, a fashion writer says. Considerable time was wasted in the days when dressmakers measured and remeasured to make sure that both sides of a dress were even or that the trimming was placed in exactly the same way on each side.

The passing of an exactness that was almost mathematical has made a place for greater art in dress. Costumes of fifty years ago, with their set lines, bear the same relation to the artistically put-together creations of today that a mechanical drawing, in which every line must be exact, bears to a free-hand drawing, in which the artist seeks an outlet for his art.

No dressmaker of the present day who makes any pretension whatever to being an artist would for a moment consider balancing the two sides of a dress; that is making one even with the other. The degree is irregular lines and one-sided effects.

With the lengthening of skirts irregular hems are more in evidence than ever. The point of a tunic may trail almost to the ground on one side, while on the other side it is much shorter and cut straight across.

This effect extends even to evening wraps and daytime coats, many of which fasten far over on one side and fall in a point to the hem, or even below the hem. Topcoats sometimes wrap completely around the figure and close at one side of the back.

The one-sided drapery is emphasized in evening dresses and often when it is used on the skirt the uneven décolletage is used, that is, one shoulder is covered by the drapery, while the other is bare, except for a strap, which holds the bodice in place. The oblique line, however, does not pass under the arm, but is definitely a shoulder line.

A considerable number of these evening dresses are extremely low in cut, but with one side back it is not with chiffer or net, which may or may not be spangled or embroidered.

FRANCE IS FASHION LEADER

Models of Almost Every Other Country Are Superseded by Styles of Paris.

France has been the acknowledged leader in the world of fashion. So generally accepted is her judgment in the selection of styles that the models of almost every other civilized country in the world are suggested by the styles of Paris. Therefore, French styles of the last four or five centuries have an important place in the history of costume and a recurrent influence on modern style.

The first definitely American garments were closely modeled on the French styles of the second empire—tight bodices and skirts held out by stiff petticoats. The Quaker dress of 1870 closely resembled the pander skirt of that French period.

But the effect of French fashion extended—and still extends—beyond Europe and America. The improvements in communication that have marked more recent years have helped to bring this about among peoples to whom the European costumes are least suited.

IN THE BLACK DESHABILLES

Mauve Is Only Color That Rivals the Somber Shade, According to Paris Reports.

Even for the deshabilles black is featured. A recent model that is extremely smart is made in one piece of black cloth, without sleeves, and with a very low, rounded neckline. It has a wing cape fastened to the wrists by thin bands of gold gauze, and the sash that ties in a bow at the front is of gold gauze, just wide enough to repeat the touch at the wrists artistically.

Paris reports that the one color that rivals black is mauve. Many houses and evening gowns are being designed in that color in chiffons and crepe georgettes, for in these materials it is almost universally becoming. A dinner dress of this color is made of soft chiffon, quite straight in line. It is embroidered in crystal beads around the lower edge of the long-sleeved bodice, from which long streamers of fringe fall over the skirt.

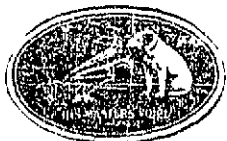

Farwell.
Pity worshiper—What is that sad, sad air you're playing, professor?
The Professor—That is Beethoven's "Farwell to the Piano." I see down that list of people coming mit der van.

What Everybody Thinks.
Carpenter—Better buy this work. It will show you how to earn more money than you are getting.
Jones—Humph! I do that now.

Obligatory.
Cholly—Is Peggy a careful dresser?
Willie—She has to be. Who wears so few clothes that she doesn't dare to take any chances.

Drummer Doing His Bit

"I am a traveling salesman and have met others who, like myself, were suffering from indigestion, stomach troubles and gastritis. Since taking three weekly doses of May's Wonderful Remedy I am very much pleased with its results, so much so that I have induced others to take it and they too were marvelously helped." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and always, by indigestion, which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere. —Advertisement

SOB SISTER

By FANNIE HURST

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

Physics can answer whence goes the candle-flame when it vanishes into blackness and what becomes of sound when the great maw of silence digests it. But what science can know the destiny of the pins and pins and pins and that is the oblivion which allows that great army of street-walking women whose cheeks are too pink and who dwell outside the barbed-wire fence of respectability?

Let the pins go, unless one lies on the sidewalk point toward you, and let this be the story of Mae Munroe herself one of the pink-cheeked grenadiers of that great army whose destiny is as vague as the destiny of pins, and who in more than one vain attempt to climb had snagged her imitation French embroidery petticoats on the outward side of that barbed-wire fence.

Then, too, in the years that lead up to this moment Mae Munroe had taken on weight—the fair, flabby flesh of lack of exercise and no lack of chocolate bonbons. And a miss is as good as a mile, or a barbed-wire fence, only so long as she keeps her figure down and her diet up. When Mae Munroe ran for a street car she breathed through her mouth for the first six blocks after she caught it. The top button of her shoe was no longer equal to the span. But her eyes are still blue, rather like sky, when you look straight up; her hair yellow to the roots; and who can gainsay that a simple in the chin is not worth two in the cheeks?

In the disorder of a red velvet sitting room cluttered with morning sunshine and unframed, unsigned photographs of stage favorites, empty bottles and dented cushions, Mae Munroe stirred on her high mound of red saten sofa pillows; placed her paper-book face down on the cushion before her; yawned; made a foray into an uncovered box of chocolate bonbons; snatched her small teeth into a creamy looking heart and dropped a particle of the sweet into the snuffling, upturned snout of a white wool dog, nudged to the curve of her arm, yawned again.

"No more tandy! Make little Snookie Ookie stick! Make muvver's little bittie bow-wow stick! No! No!" Each admonition she accompanied with a slight pat, designed to intensify further display of appetite. The small bunch in her arms raised its head and regarded her with pink, sick little eyes, his tongue darting this way and that in an aftermath of relish; then fell to licking her bare forearm with swift, dry strokes.

Mae's little bittie Snookie!

"Muvver's little bittie Snookie! Him love him poor muvver! Him poor, poor muvver!"

Him love him poor muvver! Him poor, poor muvver!"

A cold tear oozed through one of Mae Munroe's closed eyes, zigzagged down her face, and she laid her cheek pat against the white wool.

"Muvver just wishes she was dead, Snookie. God! Don't she just?"

An hour she lay so. The dog fell to snoring. Another while ticked past—loudly. And as if the ticking were against her brain like drops of water, she rose to a half-sitting posture, reached for the small onyx clock on the mantelpiece and smothered it beneath one of the red saten sofa pillows. When she relaxed again two fresh tears waggled heavily down her cream-colored cheeks. Then for a while she slept, with her mouth ever so slightly open and revealing the white line of her teeth.

The little dog emerged from his sleep gnapping and stretching backward his hind legs. Mae Munroe yawned, extending her arms at full length before her; regarded her fair, ringed fingers and the four dimples across the back of each hand; reached for a cigarette and with the wry face of nausea tossed it back into its box, swung to a sitting posture on the side of the sofa, the dog springing from the curve of her arm to the floor, shaking himself.

Her blowy hair, burned at the ends, but the color of corn-silk, came unloosed of its morning plait and she braided it over one shoulder, her blue eyes fixed on space. Tears would come.

Then she rose and crossed to the golden oak piano between the windows, her negligee open its full length and with a hand on the keys, she with a slight limp and the dog yapping at the wheel and icy train; fell to manipulating the self-playing attachment, piddling out a metallic avalanche of popular music.

At its conclusion she swung around on the bench, her back drooping as if under pressure of indolence; yawned; crossed to the window and between the parted lace curtains stood regarding the street two stories beneath, and beyond the patches of intervening rocks, a limited view of the Hudson river, a haze of coal passing lazily up center stream, a tug sucking at its side.

From the hallway and in the act of mopping a margin of floor, a maid of all-work swung back from all-fours and sat upright on her heels, inserting a head of oat-papers through the open doorway.

"Play that over again, Miss Mae. That 'Mustard Gildie' sure does tickle my soles."

Miss Munroe turned to the room with the palm of her hand placed pat against her brow. "Gee!" said she, "my head!"

"Aw, Miss Mae, can't you get yourself in a humor? What's the matter with you and me going to a movie this afternoon, eh?"

"Movie! The way every d--n thing gets on my nerves, I'd be a bit at a movie, wouldn't I? I'd be a bit anywhere!"
